

POO POWER!

Testimonial

I attended the Poo Power! session at the Sustainable Living Festival to hear Duncan's presentation about the aforementioned project. I attended from a completely uninformed position, and left feeling I had not only a sound understanding of the project from a number of perspectives, but also a genuine interest in seeing it gain momentum in being pioneered.

Firstly, given Duncan's ability to clearly articulate the positive benefits of the project, and by cleverly (and regularly) juxtaposing this against the harmful and damaging consequences of maintaining the status quo, I left feeling incredibly passionate about supporting the project due to its extraordinary potential and simple, yet incredibly effective, impacts. I also obtained a thorough understanding of the practical mechanisms of the system, in terms of what was required to set up and effectively maintain a system, where it would be of most benefit, and how it could be easily and successfully integrated in both communal and individual property.

Duncan made what was a completely novel concept to me, readily understood due to his easily accessible language, repeated confirmation of the project objectives and his personally engaging presentation style. The cogent argument he presented was very hard to discount! He was highly appealing, a very likeable advocate and could stimulate support without implication or guilt. His passion and authentic commitment to the project was evident and persuasive. A fabulous sponsor for the project!
